Welcome

I am looking forward to Budapest hosting the 2012 SPAR European Cross Country Championships. The Hungarian Athletics Association, supported by the Hungarian Open Air Museum (Skanzen), has presented an excellent and exciting proposal to European Athletics for an innovative course to be created and we await a memorable 19th edition of the championships.

The SPAR European Cross Country Championships are always an exciting and interesting competition, with the added dimension of also being a team event. The combination of the beautiful local environment in Szentendre and the obstacles on the course will provide a memorable experience for athletes, officials and fans alike.

It will be the first time Hungary will have hosted the SPAR European Cross Country Championships and I am confident that the local organising committee are doing their utmost to ensure a successful event takes place in the town of Szentendre.

I would like to register my thanks to those who dedicate much of their lives to the invaluable production of athletics statistics, and whose passion for the sport is reflected in this excellent statistical companion guide to the championships that you have in your hands.

Athletics is a popular sport in Hungary with the country boasting some excellent athletes and we hope this translates to a well-received event among fans of our sport.

I would like to thank in advance the Hungarian athletics federation, the Budapest 2012 local organising committee and the Hungarian Open Air Museum for their hard work now and in the future with regards to the organisation of the championships.

The discipline of cross country is growing to be an ever more important part of athletics during the winter months. Cross country brings together athletes from the middle distances up to the marathon in the same race and provides a special challenge as the running surface can change according to the weather conditions.

I hope that Budapest 2012 continues the success story of the SPAR European Cross Country Championships and I look forward to meeting Europe's cross country family in December 2012 in Hungary.

European Athletics President

Welcome

Just a few months following the London Summer Olympic Games, in December 2012 a new challenge awaits the very best distance runners of Europe as they stand up to each other to decide the fate of medals and places in what is one of the most picturesque cross country courses in Hungary.

Being a traditionally successful throwing nation at international level, cross country running represents a new angle in which we regard athletics in Hungary. Originating from a Health and Fitness project sponsored by the European Commission, there is now a six-week long competition series scattered all Over recent years the Hungarian Athletics Association has made great strides to return to the map of European Athletics. We signalled our intent to do so by being the second member federation to host the European Convention in the fall of 2009, and welcomed back the European Athletics Family the very next summer for the European Team Championships 1st League in Budapest. The next step in our quest is when we play host to the SPAR European Cross Country Championships in a nature conservation area. The Natural Outdoor Museum, more commonly referred to as „Skazen” established in 1967 is a fitting venue for the event. The unique blend of sport, culture and national heritage promises an unprecedented experience for the participants and we can only hope that a traditional setting, which is also prepared to accommodate for 21st century needs, will aid the performance of the athletes as well as guarantee the over the country which draws the interest of thousands of youngsters wanting to run in a natural environment. The SPAR European Cross Country Championships will be the culmination of this series and the first time in the life of many to witness such a high level of international competition.

Dear athletes and coaches!

At the end of what was certainly a great outdoor season in 2012, with athletics having taken a historical step and introducing the first ever European Championships in an Olympic year, we will be waiting to welcome you in December to a demanding course within a setting which gives account of not only the architecture, the lifestyle and the heritage but also the history of our country. We wish that all the dreams you may have come true in Hungary!.

See you in Budapest!
