After a spectacular year for athletics in 2012, we are pleased that the event tasked with keeping up the momentum our sport has on the continent is the European Athletics Indoor Championships 2013 in Gothenburg.

It is the first major athletics championships since the Helsinki 2012 European Athletics Championships and London 2012 Olympic Games, and promises to be the latest in a line of memorable athletics events.

Gothenburg can boast of an excellent tradition in sport. It hosted the European Athletics Championships in 2006 – a hugely successful event that saw sell-out crowds every evening contributing to a fantastic atmosphere.

It is the fourth time the European Athletics Indoor Championships are taking place in Sweden, with the Scandinavium Arena claiming its hat-trick of hosting the prestigious event after championships held there in 1974 and 1984. Stockholm’s Ericsson Globe also hosted the event in 1996.

The sheer interest in athletics at this moment in time will ensure that the eyes of Europe and the world will be trained on Gothenburg the whole weekend. I am confident the television audiences will be strong, the media interest high, and the discussions between athletics fans across social networks particularly strong.

I know from my many visits to Gothenburg that its people love athletics and sport in general and I have no doubt that they will fill the Scandinavium for the three days of the championships, to ensure they catch a glimpse of many of the stars we saw in action in 2012.

Aside from enjoying the best that Europe has to offer in terms of athletics, I am also looking forward to the “All under one roof” experience that the championships promise, with all manner of activities open to the public throughout the event.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank our long-standing International Partners: SPAR, Omega, Le Gruyère AOC and Eurovision for their continued support and unstinting cooperation. On behalf of European Athletics, I would also like to thank the City of Gothenburg, the Swedish Athletics Association and the Local Organising Committee for all their hard work in the organisation of the championships.

We are all looking forward to another outstanding event, and we are confident that the European Athletics Indoor Championships 2013 – with your invaluable help – will write its own special chapter in the history of athletics.
On behalf of the Local Organising Committee (LOC), I would like to welcome all media representatives to the European Athletics Indoor Championships. It will be the third time that we have hosted this event in Gothenburg. This time we can offer a new and unique concept for the event – All under one roof – which we believe will be a benefit for everyone.

As part of its international strategy, the Swedish Athletic Association wants to be a regular host of international events, since this gives an opportunity to promote athletics to young people and adults, the media, politicians, the general public and sponsors. As former General Secretary of the European Athletics Championships 2006, I know from my personal experience how a major event can leverage the sport of athletics.

We are therefore proud that European Athletics has given us the opportunity to host the 2013 European Athletics Indoor Championships. The championships will be a great opportunity for Sweden’s national team to once again compete in front of their enthusiastic and knowledgeable home crowd.

The LOC, its staff and 700 volunteers, with the assistance of European Athletics and a large number of partners, are working hard to make the event a success. One of the most important parts of the preparations is to ensure optimal working conditions to assist you in bringing the story of the championships to those who are not able to be in the arena.

We have done our utmost to create an event with a friendly and exciting spirit, which we hope will promote athletics throughout Europe with your valuable support. We look forward to welcoming you all to Sweden and Gothenburg in March.

10.5 MEDALS FOR THE EUROPEAN ATHLETICS INDOOR CHAMPIONSHIPS 2013

OMEGA TO TIME
THE GOTHENBURG 2013
EUROPEAN ATHLETICS
INDOOR CHAMPIONSHIPS

OMEGA’S LONG-TERM AGREEMENT WITH EUROPEAN ATHLETICS INCLUDES A NUMBER OF CHAMPIONSHIP EVENTS. IN ADDITION TO THIS YEAR’S GOTHENBURG 2013 EUROPEAN ATHLETICS INDOOR CHAMPIONSHIPS, THEY WILL SERVE AS OFFICIAL TIMEKEEPER AND DATA HANDLING PARTNER FOR THE ZURICH 2014 EUROPEAN ATHLETICS CHAMPIONSHIPS AND THE AMSTERDAM 2016 EUROPEAN ATHLETICS CHAMPIONSHIPS.
OMEGA AND ATHLETICS
OMEGA has unparalleled experience in sports timekeeping. In 1932, OMEGA pocket watch chronographs were already considered the most reliable instruments available for measuring world-class performance at sporting events. OMEGA’s reputation was such that the International Olympic Committee (IOC) asked the firm to supply all sports timing devices for use at the Olympic Games to be held that year in Los Angeles. The company was happy to oblige, and delivered 30 OMEGA chronographs, accompanied by an expert watchmaker, to ensure precise timekeeping and reliable results from all the competitions. OMEGA has continued to develop and deliver state-of-the-art sports timing and measurement systems ever since, and in London in 2012, the brand served as Official Timekeeper at the Olympic Games for the 25th time.

OMEGA’S INNOVATIVE TIMING AND MEASURING TECHNOLOGY
OMEGA’s official timekeepers ensure timely delivery of the official results to everyone involved in the competitions they support. At the events it serves, OMEGA is also responsible for the competitor displays for the athletes and their support teams along with the public displays to spectators at each venue. The official results are also delivered in real time to broadcast, network and print media who in turn relay results and commentary to remote audiences around the world.

Every year, OMEGA’s experts deploy teams of timekeeping professionals to sporting events around the world, armed with a veritable arsenal of advanced sports timekeeping and measurement equipment. Their innovative systems include starting blocks and false-start detection systems and the latest photo-finish cameras for the sprints and middle-distance events, as well as height and distance measurement devices for field disciplines.

From its creation OMEGA’s history has been replete with examples of innovation, record precision, audacious design, pioneering spirit and a tradition of excellence in watchmaking. It is proud to bring its spirit of innovation to the Gothenburg 2013 European Athletics Indoor Championships.
